ALL NICHOLAS' FOOD CAREFULLYWATCHED

No Chances Taken in Czar's Big Kitchen of Poisoning Him.

Everything Tasted Like in Court of Oriental Despot.

The kitchens in which the food of the 'great white Czar' is prepared are extraordinary for the elaborate precautions taken to prevent any of his house-hold tampering with his food. The kitchens themselves present the appearance of a strong room of a modern bank, guarded by a regiment of soldiers rather than the culinary department of a royal palace.

Even the chef-M. Eugene Kratz-who presides over the imperial kitchens, en-joying a salary of $20,000 a year, and social privileges equal to those of a general of the Russian army, is not to be envied in his peculiar position.

As soon as dinner or luncheon is ready to be placed on the Emperor's table, a very elaborate system of "tasting" has to be gone through; and when the Czar is in residence at Peterwhen the Czar is in residence at Peterhof, not only M. Kratz himself, but also his under chefs and certain high officials of the imperial army are called in to taste every dish that goes to the Emperor's table, after which experiment a reasonable time is permitted to elapse the see whether or not the "tasters" are poisoned. This curious survival of other days comes from the time of Ivan the Terrible.

Survival of other days comes from the time of Ivan the Terrible.

When the meals prepared for his majesty are served, M. Kratz himself begins to taste; and after the strange "poisoning" interval has elapsed the dishes are placed in an electric elevator with a closed shaft, into which the military officials are locked, and upgoes the lift to the ante-chamber of the imperial dining room. Here again the major on duty samples the dishes under the eyes of the Czur, after which the imperial family sit down to dinner.

No dish ever served on the czar's table is permitted access to the dining room save through the elevator shaft. Thus the food can in no way be tampered with save by the cooks themselves and the military officials on duty. It has been said by an authority that the imperial family of Russia in bygone times sat down to their meals in a dining room constructed of cast iron and steel, for all the world like a bank yoult. This, however, is not the case now; but elaborate precautions still have to be made to prevent the enemics of the Czar carrying out their plots against his life.

The head of a certain Pittsburg manufacturing concern is an old gentleman who built up his business from nothing by his own dogged and persistent toil and who has never felt that he could spare the time for a vacation. Not long ago, however, he decided that he was getting along in years, and that he was entitled to a rest. Calling his son into the library, he said:

"Tom, I've worked pretty hard for quite a while now and have done pretty well, so I have about decided to retire and turn the business over to you. What do you say?"

The young man pondered the situation gravely. Then a bright idea seemed to strike him. "Say, pop," he suggested, "how would it do for you to work a few years longer and then the two of us retire together?"—From Harper's Weekly.
